Position   Senior Digital Designer and Illustrator

Duration   Full time or Contract

Location   UK, Europe, East Coast or Central US, on-site or off-site

About Codio

Codio is the leading web platform for teaching and learning to code in schools, universities and the vocational sector worldwide. It has the following key components

- Unique web based coding platform for teaching and learning any programming language, you'll find the same features offered in professional desktop IDEs
- comprehensive features to help teachers administer classes of students
- Integrated tools for authoring and publishing rich teaching and learning content
- Fully authored content for learning how to code – visible in a split panel environment alongside the student workspace

Position Summary

The quality of our teaching and learning content is critical to our success and the strength of images, interactivity, and animations is a vital component in creating content of the required production value.

Codio is now engaged in a significant content creation exercise to build teaching and learning content, covering key computer programming languages, into the Codio IDE platform – with an audience of teachers and students worldwide. Injecting design and production quality into the content creation process is critical to creating content that teachers and students want to use.

We are looking for a passionate designer to take full responsibility for all design and visual aspects of our content as well as leading all design functions relating to company and product branding. You will

- Define visual design standards and guides for all aspects of content
- Beautifully represent key coding concepts with illustrations
- Create or supervise animations where necessary
- Create design styles and processes that allow rapid creation
- Communicate and support content authors, helping determine where graphics can enhance the learning experience

We are located in the UK but are more interested in your outstanding design qualities than where you live.

To Apply

If you are a recruiter or consulting firms please do not contact us.

If you are passionate about design and education then please send a link to your portfolio to fmay@codio.com.